Builder Service & Unity Platform Release

The Builder Service is getting the required Unity Platform release from the SVN repository.

On the SVN repository, releases are tagged with the name "Release_xx"; where "xx" stands for the name of the version. For example: Release_2.0

Applications could configure the platform release to be included on its build process via the "build.properties" file; using a new property called "unity.platform.version".

build.properties
<code>unity.platform.version=2.1 --&gt; this will include the Unity Platform release 2.1</code>

build.properties

unity.platform.version=3.0 --> this will include the Unity Platform release 3.0

build.properties

unity.platform.version=trunk --> this will include the Unity Platform TRUNK code.

 #The above configuration will be used just for the Platform developers to test new features on the devices.

Applications could configure the Unity Core Resources release to be included - the Unity Javascript Framework - via the "app.config" file:

app.config

unity=3.2 --> this will include the Unity JS and CSS files that corresponds to the version 3.2

Take into account

This new build property will be available on  $\geq 3.1$  Emulator versions.

Unity Core Resources

Latest available Unity Javascript Framework is 3.2
